ON YACHT, BARELY ESCAPING CRASH

Privateer, With Japanese Hero and Staff Aboard, Narrowly Avoids Collision With Heavily Laden Brick Barge in Fog.

In the fog that hung over the Hudson River R. A. C. Smith's steam yacht Privateer, bearing Gen, Baron Tamemoto Kuroki, the great Japanese soldier hero, and a distinguished company of American, Japanese and Argentine military men on their way to West Point Military Academy, almost wrecked herself upon a huge barge just above Haverstraw this afternoon. Skilled seamanship by the millionaire owner and commander of the yacht was all that kept the jaunty craft from

The Privateer had left the foot of West Forty-second street this morning. On board as guests of Mr. Smith were the Baron, his staff of ten officers, three attaches of the standing army of the Argentine Republic, who have been visiting the Jamestown Exposition; Gen. Oliver Wood and Major Charles Lynch. S. A., and several newspaper men. As the Japanese commander was goparty wore full-dress uniforms. On the breasts of the Japanese big medala shone, while the cockatoo feathers in the shakes of the South Americans lent g parrot-cage touch to the ensemble.

Commandant Scott, Capt. Coe and the Academy starf stood waiting for her. Ten huge black cavalrymen lined behind the little landing as an escort to the American officers.

First there was a luncheon in the officers mess and then an informal reception at Colum Hall in honor of Gen. Kuroki. From there the visitors were taken to Riding Hall to see a rough-riding exhibition by the negrocavalrymeo and wrestling bouts and fercing drills by the slim gray-coated cadets.

It was stated that the party would start back the river at dusk. Dinner is to be served on board the yacht, and barring mishaps, the Japanese warrfor will reach New York in aple time to be in his box at the Hippodrome when the curtain rises on the opening scene.

Despite the narrow escape from a collision with the flagship of the Haverstraw brick feet, Gen. Kuroki enjoyed the trip immensely. Through Capt. Panaka he said to an Evening World reporter. "I am delighted with the reception we have had. Most particularly have I been struck with the beauty and the ease of manner of the young American women has impressed me greatly. "To-morrow I expect to ride in your subway and to visit your Slock Exchange. I will ding with Col. Robert Thompson on the twentleth floor of one of your great buildings. It is marvellous to think of eating a meal so night in the sir. Saturday I go to Yale Bunday I hope to spend at the famous Coney I eland and Monday I think I shall visit the race track."

Chose the Dark Girl.

Soon after the yacht started on her trip to-day Mr. Smith brought out two handsome applistries on which were the figures of two typical American girls, a blonde and a brunette. The militonaire wanted to know which of the two figures Kuroki liked the best. The spirit of Japan was reflected in the phoice, for Kuroki aimed a short brown forefinger at the brunelie. He seemed telighted when Mr. Smith presented it ham.
